The prices for publishing packages provided are estimates and can vary widely due to numerous factors. These factors include but are not limited to, the complexity and length of the book, the experience and demand of the illustrator, the level of editing and design required, and additional services such as marketing and distribution. Each project is unique, and as such, the final cost may differ from the estimates provided. Additional funds may be necessary, or the amount may be less than what is quoted. To provide an accurate assessment of the final cost, a manuscript must be submitted to reignpublicationscompany@gmail.com, and a call with the client will be scheduled to discuss the specific needs and details of the project.
